Online student plays two instruments

Jaden Voma isn't afraid of a challenge. She takes an hour-long flute lesson and hour-long cello lesson each week in addition to attending school and playing sports.

By April 2020, she was accustomed to attending school online due to the coronavirus shutdown. She played flute in band, and she wanted to take private flute lessons as well. That's when her mom found the Wichita Music Academy at Garten's Music.

Voma, now a ninth-grader, lives in Junction City. She attends an hour-long flute lesson online with instructor Robby Avila at the Wichita Music Academy.

"I wanted to get better at playing the flute," Voma said. "I taught myself most of the time. The band teacher, he has a lot of people to work with.

"Band is my favorite time of the day," she added.

When she works with Avila, Voma tries to pick challenging songs so she can learn new things and grow as a musician, she said. She also became interested in cello. She doesn't play in her school orchestra, but she takes an hour-long cello lesson online each week from instructor Caroline Beckman of the Wichita Music Academy.

"I like to learn everything, really – anything and everything," Voma said of her music.

She is in her school's marching band and also competes on the tennis team. Voma said most of her flute practice occurs during band class, and she practices her cello three to five times a week.

"I just use time management," she remarked.

Voma pointed out that private lessons are especially helpful when she's preparing to audition or to play for judges at solo and ensemble contests. She enjoys working with Avila and Beckman.

"I like my teachers," Voma said. "They're a lot of fun – very relatable. And they've been pushing me a lot.

"I like being pushed," she continued. "It's taught me a lot."

Voma hopes to join a symphony when she's an adult. She said she would play flute or cello – whichever instrumentalist the symphony needed.

"It is a lot of fun to play music," Voma said. "I would like to incorporate that in my life."

We are so proud of our Wichita Music Academy students who have earned their Musical Ladder awards, and we are now honoring them in a different way! We introduced the Musical Ladder System in 2016, and now we have grown to include more than 300 students! We can't include all their photos in the newsletter when they earn awards, so we are publishing their photos in a full-color handout that is available at the front desk. We love to see our students' smiling faces! Just ask our office staff for your copy.
